RELIGIOUS LIBERTY In Crosshairs on Campus

5/10/17 – EDWARD C NOONAN, Former 2012 & 2016 Presidential Candidate alert:

American Center for Law and Justice (ACLJ) sent the following email to our readers:

Religious liberty on college campuses is in the crosshairs.

Today we're taking major action in federal appeals court to defend the faith of Christian students from pervasive anti-Christian discrimination.

*One state college rejected a Christian student, saying the medical "field is not the place for religion."

*In another of our cases, a college student was denied admission because he "brought up religion."

*Disturbingly, anti-Christian discrimination is growing nationwide. One university student was expelled for her faith, another was told to defile the name of Jesus, and another was failed for refusing to agree that Christianity is false.

This isn't just outrageous; it's blatantly unconstitutional.

In just hours, we'll be presenting oral argument in federal appeals court to address this issue.

The Constitution is clear: Believing in God doesn't disqualify a student from academic study in any field. As we fight illegal anti-Christian discrimination in federal appeals court, take action with us.

Sign Our Petition: Defend Students from Anti-Christian Bigotry.
