President Putin has deployed Russian troops in the Eastern Military District to prepare for what could be a series of devastating earthquakes and tsunamis to hit the Kamchatka peninsula. He has also issued a warning that a much bigger ‘megaquake’ could strike the United States northwestern Pacific Ocean region.

The deployment was prompted by an “urgent warning” sent to the Security Council over the weekend by scientist Mehran Keshe, who warned that the 5.8 earthquake that struck the Kingdom of Tonga signaled that the Pacific Plate is preparing for a “catastrophic new alignment”.

The American Resistance Party is sending warnings that if there are a series of devastating earthquakes and tsunamis to hit, they will most likely be centered in the United States-Canada-Alaska northwestern Pacific Ocean region. This area may be in even more danger than Russia.
