FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE ACTION ALERT

NEW YORK TIMES SHAREHOLDER 'Drug Lord'

1/8/18 – EDWARD C NOONAN, Former 2012 & 2016 Presidential Candidate alert:

BEN SHAPIRO posted an article on dailywire.com titled, "The New York Times Proves It Hates Religious Americans With This Obituary." It pertained to the death of the LDS President Thomas S. Monson. See: <https://www.dailywire.com/news/25411/new-york-times-proves-it-hates-religious-americans-ben-shapiro#> In response, Edward C Noonan wrote this about the New York Times and its largest shareholder, Carlos Slim Helú:

#1) Wikipedia: Carlos Slim Helú (Spanish pronunciation: ['ka?los es'lim e'lu]; born January 28, 1940) is a Mexican business magnate, investor, and philanthropist.[2][3] From 2010 to 2013, Slim was ranked as the richest person in the world.[1][4] He derived his fortune from his extensive holdings in a considerable number of Mexican companies through his conglomerate, Grupo Carso.[5] As of 27 October 2017, he is the sixth-richest person in the world according to Forbes' listing of The World's Billionaires with a net worth estimated at $64.3 billion.[1]

In 2008 Slim took a 6.4% stake valued at $27 million in the troubled New York Times Company, as the global recession and declining advertising revenues took a particularly heavy toll on print-based "old media" companies across the United States.[18] Slim increased his stake to 8% by 2012.[39] Slim's stake in the Times increased again to 16.8% of the company's Class A shares on January 20, 2015 when he exercised stock options to purchase 15.9 million shares, making him the largest shareholder in the company.[40][41][42] The New York Times Company's Class A shares are available for purchase by the public and offer less control over the company than Class B shares, which are privately held.[41] According to the company's 2016 annual filings, Slim owned 17.4% of the company's Class A shares, and none of the company's Class B shares.[43]

#2) Mexican reporter, writer and filmmaker Diego Enrique Osorno recently published a book of one of the world's "allegedly" richest people, Mexican businessman Carlos Slim, who in 2011 was linked to drug trafficking by a DEA agent. In his book, Osorno writes that former Mexican presidents were "very fearful" of speaking about Slim. In March, Forbes said he was second only to Bill Gates in terms of riches, with a fortune hovering near US$80 billion. <https://www.telesurtv.net...>
